Hun Sen or Prince Norodom Ranariddh

Cameron A. MacKenzie

Indiana University - Purdue University Fort Wayne

Follow this and additional works at: http://opus.ipfw.edu/stu_symp1998

Part of the History Commons

Recommended Citation
http://opus.ipfw.edu/stu_symp1998/19

This Presentation is brought to you for free and open access by the IPFW Student Research and Creative Endeavor Symposium at Opus: Research & Creativity at IPFW. It has been accepted for inclusion in 1998 IPFW Student Research and Creative Endeavor Symposium by an authorized administrator of Opus: Research & Creativity at IPFW. For more information, please contact admin@lib.ipfw.edu.
CAMBODIA: HUN SEN OR PRINCE NORodom RANARIDDH
Cameron A. MacKenzie
(Ralph Violette, Professor of History)
Department of History

Cambodia has been in political turmoil for over thirty years now, but stability could be just on the horizon. Two political and military rivals, Hun Sen and Prince Norodom Ranariddh, the two co-prime ministers, have agreed to a Japanese-brokered peace plan which could lead to stable elections in July. A cease-fire between the armies of the two leaders has been declared, yet troubles might still occur. The Khmer Rouge which had been fighting under Prince Norodom has condemned the cease-fire, and the prince, himself, has been convicted of illegally smuggling arms. It remains to be seen whether this little Asian country will achieve peace and stability or fall back to becoming the "Killing Fields."